Rumors Of Peace Appear Suddenly On Battlefront

27 WOUNDED AMERICANS RELEASED

By RELMAN MORIN

TOKYO, Nov. 23—(AP)—Peace rumors appeared suddenly today amid a Thanksgiving Day quiet on the Korean battlefronts.

Talk of a negotiated settlement was touched off by:

1. Chinese Communists suddenly released 27 wounded American prisoners. The freed men brought this message—"the Chinese do not want to fight the Americans" United Nations military authorities clamped a "top secret" lid on details of the release.

Continue Withdrawal

2. Chinese Reds, with an estimated 100,000 men in northwest Korea, continued to withdraw without a fight.

3. UN troops did not move up to take over abandoned Red fortifications.

"There is a reason" why UN troops have not advanced, a spokesman at General MacArthur's headquarters said. He would not say what that reason was.

Col. M. P. Echols, headquarters information officer, denied reports that any peace negotiations were in progress "at this level."

Small groups of North Koreans sought their own peace by fleeing across the Yalu river to safety in Red Manchuria from the U. S. 7th Division's sector in northeast Korea.

Propaganda Move

Released American prisoners expressed the belief the Chinese Reds freed them as a propaganda move. Ranking American officers in Ko-

Second Protest On Soviet Tactics In Austria Filed

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP)—The United States, Britain and France protested again today against alleged Soviet interference with the Austrian government's control over its own police in the Russian zone.

The new protest charged that the Russians have prevented Austrian authorities from maintaining law and order and demanded that Moscow order its representatives in Vienna "to conform strictly" to four-power agreements which would prevent such interference.

The American note, released by the State Department here simultaneously with French and British announcements abroad, implied there is a danger of breakdown in four-power operations in Austria. It urged the Russians to take action to avoid "a serious deterioration of functioning of the quadripartite machinery in Austria."

An earlier protest, made on Nov. 10, evidently has been ignored by Moscow. The latest American action was taken with the handling of a note to Acting Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko by American Ambassador Alan Kirk Wednesday.

This note said the United States has information that district police chiefs suspended by Austrian government action for their behavior during Communist-inspired demonstrations Oct. 4 "have defied legal and constitutional authority" of the federal police-president and have forbidden their subordinates to communicate with the central Austrian government without their consent.

Further, the note asserted that the Russian representative in the inter-allied command in Vienna has widened the split between these officers and the Austrian government by ordering the police-president to keep hands off police personnel in the Soviet zone except when the soviets approve his action in advance.

The note warned Russia of "grave consequences to our common objective in Austria if international agreements continued to be disregarded."

UN Unit Shelves Charges Leveled At Soviet Russia

LAKE SUCCESS, Nov. 23—(AP)—The United Nations Political Committee recommended today that the general assembly shunt Nationalist China's charges against Soviet Russia to the little assembly, which considered the case all last year without action. This, in effect, puts the issue on the shelf again.

The committee vote was 35 to 17, with seven abstentions.

Still Before Assembly.

The general assembly still must act on the proposal, which had the backing of the United States and the Middle Eastern countries.

Before the vote, Sir Carl Berendsen of New Zealand appealed to the committee not to "wash its hands" of the case by dropping the charges, as suggested by British, Russian, Australian, French and other delegates.

Berendsen said if the UN closes its eyes and ears to a complaint of aggression "the UN might as well close its doors."

T. F. Tsiang, chief Nationalist China delegate, pleaded with the committee to create a committee of experts to investigate his charges that the Russians aided the Chinese Communists and are a threat to peace in the Far East.

Moral Judgment Asked.

Tsiang said he wanted a moral judgment. He said he gave up hope of material aid last year soon after he filed his charges against the Russians.

Britain, France, the Soviet Union, Australia, Canada and a number of other nations suggested that the committee drop the matter entirely. All but the Soviet

Actual Work On New Tax Measure To Start Friday

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP)—Congressional tax writers will cut their Thanksgiving holiday break to one day in order to begin pen work Friday on an excess profits tax measure tailored to meet President Truman's specifications.

The House Ways and Means committee ended week-long hearings on the measure Wednesday with Republican and Democratic members swapping charges of "politics" and obstructionist tactics.

Determined to frame a business profits tax measure in time for action by the "lame-duck" congressional session opening Monday, Chairman Doughton (D-NC) cracked the whip over reluctant committee members to bring them back to work Friday. He hopes to have the bill ready by Dec. 1.

In advance of the scheduled closed-door meeting, there appeared to be no general agreement on specific methods for taxing business profits to raise the $4,000,000,000 Mr. Truman wants.

There was considerable discussion of combining an excess profits tax with an across-the-board boost in corporate income taxes, now at a 45 per cent rate.

There also was discussion of imposing a ceiling, possibly up to 65 per cent, on the government's total tax take from business earnings.

Plane Wreckage Believed Sighted

NORMAN, Wyo., Nov. 23—(AP)—A park ranger said he scanned the rugged slopes of Mount Moran through a telescope today and sighted what he believes may be the wreckage of a missing transport plane.

Twenty-one persons, 10 of them missionaries with the New Tribes Mission, a religious organization, were aboard the plane that disappeared Tuesday night. Eight of the pasengers were children of the missionaries.

Eliot Davis, the ranger, said he spotted what he thanks was the wreckage near Skillet Glacier, about two-thirds of the way up the 12,594-foot peak.

A ground party began a second attempt to scale the rugged snow-covered peak. Included were three men from the army search and rescue squadron at McChord Field, Tacoma, Wash. They planned to establish a base camp part way up the mountain. Park officials said it might take two or three days for the climbers to work their way up the peak.

Western Germany Will Attempt To Pay Foreign Debts

BONN, Germany, Nov. 23—(AP)—The west German government will formally declare itself responsible for the pre-war foreign debts of Hitler's Reich within a few days, it was authoritatively learned today.

After this declaration the western allies will begin relaxing some of the occupation controls on the Federal Republic.

Informed sources said a revised occupation statute would give west Germany its own foreign office and greater powers over its internal affairs among other things.

The Reich's many creditors cannot expect to be paid at once, however, financial experts are working out a settlement plan, but it will be many months before the tangled skein of Germany's financial affairs is unravelled.

The U. S. Army poured nearly $2,000,000,000 into Germany after its surrender to put the country on its feet again. Britain contributed over two hundred million (560,000,000).

This was before the European recovery program was extended to include west Germany. The Federal Republic has already acknowledged its obligation to repay ERP funds in a separate treaty with the United States.

Repayment of economic aid will have priority over all other debt settlements.

Government Feud On Interest Rate Believed Ended

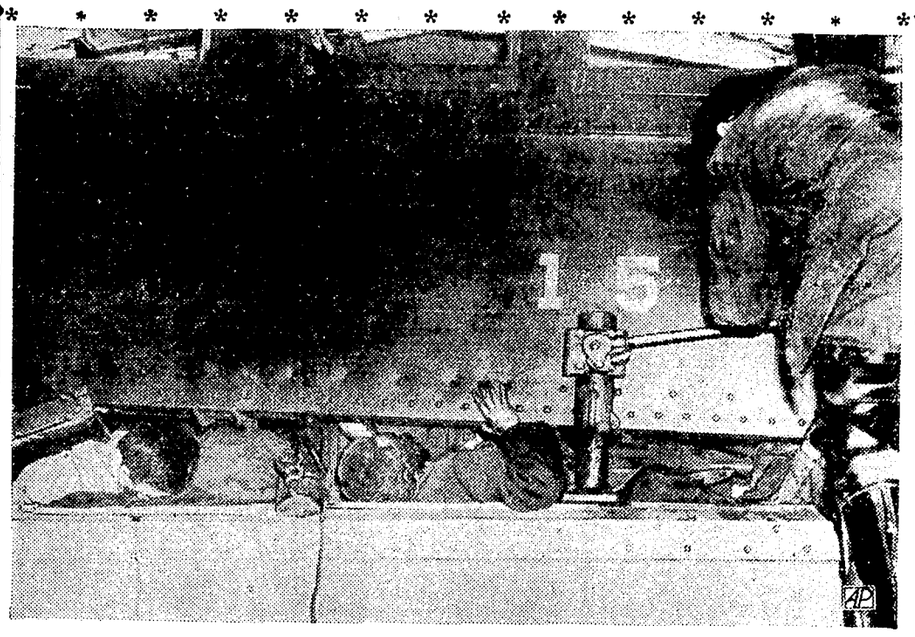

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—(AP)—The treasury and the federal reserve board apparently have settled a two-months-old controversy over interest rates paid in refinancing government debt when it falls due.

The tip-off came when the treasury offered 1 3-4 per cent five-year notes in exchange for $8,008,101,500 in securities falling due Dec. 15 and Jan. 1. That was a 1-4 per cent higher rate than was paid on the last five-year notes issued March 15.

The treasury and the reserve board had been at odds over whether to follow the recent uptrend in interest rates generally. The treasury had refused to pay higher rates chiefly because this would boost the present $5,750,000,000-a-year carrying charge on the government debt.

The reserve board contended that it was more important to fight inflation by discouraging others from borrowing. The treasury could do that, the board held, by paying higher interest itself and thereby encouraging the general rise in interest rates.

The new treasury note offering, announced by Secretary Snyder, was authoritatively reported to be the product of an agreement between the agencies that signaled a truce, and probably peace, in their dispute.

WORK TO FREE CRASH VICTIMS—A rescue worker uses a jack in an effort to pry apart telescoped Long Island Railroad cars and reach victims crushed to death in a jumble of twisted steel in New York City. The trains bound from Pennsylvania station in Manhattan to Jamaica and other Long Island points crashed in the Kew Gardens section of Queens when one made an unscheduled stop and another crashed into it. (AP Wirephoto).

AT LEAST 333 OTHERS ARE INJURED, MANY CRITICALLY WHEN TWO EXPRESSES CRASH

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—(AP)—A Long Island railroad express train, jammed with a holiday eve rush hour crowd, ripped into the rear of another train Wednesday night, killing 76 persons and injuring at least 333 others.

Many of the injured are in critical condition. Police said the death toll might go higher.

The trains crashed with a blinding flash, telescoping two smoker cars into a twisted mass of steel and mangled bodies.

Seventy-five of the 76 dead have been tentatively identified. But one body, that of a pretty dark-haired girl wearing a green sweater, lay unclaimed in the Queens county morgue.

It was the costliest railroad accident in New York State's history, and the worst in the nation since 1943, when 80 perished in the wreck of the Pennsylvania Railroad's Congressional Limited in Philadelphia.

Clean-up Difficult

Not until 3:30 a. m. (EST) today—nine hours after the tragic collision—were the last bodies removed from the wreckage.

Most of the dead were wedged in the smashed smoker cars.

Throughout the night, ambulances clanged away from the Eerie, torch-lit scene in Kew Gardens carrying bodies to the county morgue a little more than a mile away.

Of the 333 known injured, 53 were in hospitals, some on the critical list. Ninety-nine others were treated at hospitals and sent home, while 181 other persons were given medical aid at the wreck scene.

Second This Year

The disaster was the second in nine months for the 116-year-old Long Island Railroad, busiest passenger line in the United States. Thirty-one persons died Feb. 17 in a headon wreck at Rockville Centre.

The quiet residential area of Kew Gardens—in Queens Borough 13 miles from Times Square—became a scene of sickening horror an instant after the trains crashed Wednesday night with a blinding flash of electricity.

The motorman of one train lived and was questioned by authorities. The other died.

The surviving motorman, William Murphy, 61, said he slowed his train for a signal and the brakes locked for some unexplained reason. The train ground to a stop.

The second train—only minutes behind on the main line—crashed into the standing one. It bored through the rear of the first train like a piece of steel through a tube.

Acting Mayor Joseph Sharkey, surveying the scene, said:

"It's time we find out why these things happen so often on this particular line. It's a crime."

No Arrests Planned

However, after questioning Murphy, District Attorney Charles P. Sullivan said:

"There will be no arrest until negligence is shown."

Sharkey said he is issuing today an order restricting the speed of Long Island trains within the city limits to 25 miles per hour.

He estimated the second train in the crash was going 40 to 50 miles an hour.

Sullivan said Murphy told him the brakes were working normally when the first train pulled out of Joe B. Fortson, Sr., 78, capitalist, life-long resident of Navarro county, died at his home, 220 North Fourteenth street, Wednesday night at 10 o'clock.

He had been ill only a short time following a heart attack and attendant complications.

Fortson was a member of the firm of Fortson Brothers. His brother-partner, the late John T. Fortson, passed away several years ago.

Funeral Friday

Funeral services will be held from the First Methodist church here Friday at 3 p. m. Burial will be in Oakwood cemetery. The rites will be conducted by Dr. Chet C. Henson, pastor.

The son of the late James T. and Ida Clayton Fortson, he was reared on a farm between Rice and Chatfield in northeastern Navarro county.

He entered the banking business in the early 1900s with the First State Bank of Rice, a firm he headed at the time of his death.

Bitter Cold Is Whistling Down On Central Texas

By The Associated Press.

A bitter cold wave whistled through the Texas Panhandle this morning and bore down on the rest of the state.

It looked like a cold Thanksgiving Day for most of the state although the norther was not expected to get its full strength into extreme South Texas until Friday.

Snow Predicted.

Snow flurries were predicted for the Panhandle and South Plains today. Temperatures as low as 8 to 16 above zero were predicted for the Panhandle tonight. The South Plains were warned of expected 16 to 22 reading and the rest of West Texas will see temperatures fall to 22 to 26.

Along the Red River watershed temperatures were expected to fall to 16 to 22 tonight. Interior Central Texas, centered around Waco, was expected to have a sub-freezing 23 to 30 range. Near freezing was predicted for the upper coast.

Wind Pushes Cold.

Temperatures were expected to fall to cold levels in South Texas tonight, with the full force of the norther reaching there, and bringing much colder weather Friday.

At mid-morning the norther was through the Panhandle and fanning out over the plains country and toward Central Texas. Winds of 20 to 27 miles an hour shoved the norther along.

Small craft warnings were ordered raised along the coast. Strong northerly winds were expected to set in there tonight, making the going rough for coastwise craft.

The norther already had brought snow flurries intho the Northern Plains states in advance of zero or near zero temperatures expected tonight. Temperatures already were below zero in parts of Montana, the Dakotas and Minnesota. It was a frigid 20 below in Havre and Cutbank, Mont.

Holiday Mishaps Take 123 Lives Up Until Noon

By the Associated Press

The nation's Thanksgiving holiday accidental deaths soared to 123 by noon today.

From 6 p. m. Wednesday 41 persons were killed in traffic accidents. Six died from miscellaneous causes, not including 76 killed in a Long Island railroad accident on Wednesday night.

Total deaths, exclusive of the Long Island crash, were 47. Including the railroad acident the total was 123.

In Vermont two young brothers drowned when their sled crashed through thin ice on a pond. Two were killed in a fire in North Carolina.

One traffic accident near Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, involving two cars and a trailer truck, killed four persons. Texas reported three traffic deaths.

Last Thanksgiving accidental deaths totaled 181, a record for the holiday. Of this number, 13 resulted from traffic crashes and 58 from miscellaneous source, including 14 killed in tornadoes.

The previous high for Thanksgiving was in 1947, when 123 were killed, 107 in traffic accidents.

Government Opens Communist Fight

2 Are Convicted Of Conspiring To Obstruct Justice

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—(AP)—A chemical engineer and his woman business associate were convicted Wednesday night of conspiring to hinder a federal investigation of the engineer's relations with confessed atom spy Harry Gold.

They are Abraham Brothman, 36, and Miriam Moskowitz, 34.

A federal court jury of seven men and five women brought in the guilty verdict after almost four hours' deliberation.

Maximum penalties at the sentencing set for Nov. 28 could be seven years in prison and a $15,000 fine for Brothman and two years and $10,000 fine for Miss Moskowitz.

Gold, formerly employed by Brothman, was the government's star witness against the pair.

Brothman and Miss Moskowitz were convicted of obstructing justice in a grand jury probe. They were accused specifically of conspiring together with Gold to defraud the government of its function of enforcing the federal criminal laws.

An additional count against Brothman alleged that he "urged, advised and persuaded" Gold to give false testimony on July 31, 1947 before a federal grand jury investigating espionage and subversive activities.

Union Expelled From CIO Asking Reinstatement

CHICAGO, Nov. 23—(AP)—One of eleven unions kicked out of the CIO for purported Communist domination appealed to the CIO convention for reinstatement today.

The appeal came from the Marine cooks and stewards, which was expelled along with eight other unions by the CIO executive board after the first two were ousted by last year's convention. The other 10 unions did not appeal.

The Marine cooks and stewards, representing some 10,000 members on the West coast, announced sometime ago that it would appeal. It failed to file its appeal notice the required 10 days before the convention, but the convention appeals committee agreed to waive the requirement when the notice finally arrived.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23—(AP)—The government has fired the opening gun in what may well be a history-making battle with the Communist party in the Unied States.

Attorney General J. Howard McGrath formally charged Wednesday night that American Reds are ruled by Soviet Russia and owe first allegiance to "The Red Flag."

Sweeping Condemnation

He called on the new Subversice Activities Control board to force the party to register with him the names of its leaders and members, and give an accounting of its sources of revenue.

His petition, running to nearly 5,000 words, constituted the most sweeping condemnation of U. S. Communist activity ever put out by any official of this government.

"In the event of a war between the Soviet Union and the United States," McGrath said, "the Communists in the United States have obligated themselves to act to defeat the military efforts of the United States and to aid and support the Soviet Union."

First Board Business

Should such a war matrialize, he added, the Communist party plans calls for civil insurrection in the United States for the purpose of establishing "a Soviet America having a dictatorship of the proletariat such as exists in the Soviet Union."

Nation's Reasons For Thanksgiving Listed At Service

By DON MORRISSEY
Daily Sun Staff

About 500 persons attending the Union Thanksgiving services in First Baptist church Wednesday night heard Dr. M. T. Sadler, president of Texas Christian University, deliver an address based on the first Thanksgiving and the vision of this country's forefathers.

"Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord," said Dr. Sadler.

"And our nation has been blessed because the Pilgrims settled here to build a democracy and they chose God as their Lord."

The speaker said, we have many things to be thankful for. We live in America. There are many things wrong with America just as there are many things wrong with individual Americans.

America Is Choice

"But," said Dr. Sadler, "I choose America and o American democracy which was founded by the Pilgrims at Plymouth colony and

Radical Leaders Held As Plotters Of Assassination

NEW YORK, Nov. 23—(AP)—Two Puerto Rican radical leaders, suspected of being chief plotters in the attempt to assasinate President Truman, were held in separate New York jails today under heavy guard.

Th two men were seized here lte Wednesday by secret service agents.

They are Julio Pinto Gandia, 42, veteran terrorist anl president of the New York unit of the Puerto Rican Nationalist party, and Juan Bernardo Lebon, 28, past president of the New York unit.

More arrests were believed in the offing.

The wives of two men who attempted to kill the President in Washington—Oscar Collazo and Griselio Torresola—were arrested here shortly after the Nov. 1 gun battle outside Blair House.

Assistant U. S. Attorney Frederick H. Block said that a federal grand jury has evidence of "the possible existence of an organized plot" to kill the President, with the gunmen "having been guided in their mission by Gandia and Lebron and the gunmen's wives."

The charge against Gandia and Lebron is that they conspired with the two wives—Mrs. Rosa Collazo, 42, and Mrs. Carmen Torresola, 22—against the safety of the President.

U. S. Commissioner Edward W. McDonald held Gandia and Lebron in $50,000 bail each for a hearing Dec. 6.

Mustangs Admit Bowl 'Feelers'

DALLAS, Nov. 23—(AP)—Southern Methodist has received feelers from both the Sugar and Orange Bowls and will accept an invitation, if one be forthcoming, in the event the team finishes the season with victories, Athletic Director Matty Bell said today.

Southern Methodist, which has lost two games this campaign, plays Baylor here Saturday and Texas Christian Dec. 2.

"With two more games to play we have other things to worry about," Bell said today. "Howev , I won't deny that we have received feelers both from the Sugar Bowl and the Orange Bowl, as well as others, including the new bowl game planned in Stockton, Calif. And I will admit that should we win our next two games we would be deeply interested in an invitation from either the Sugar Bowl or Orange Bowl. I do not believe that the Southwest conference would approve an acceptance to any bowl game other than New Orleans or Miami."

Cheered By Talk Of Peace In Korea, Americans Celebrate Thanksgiving

By The Associated Press.

Americans at home and in foreign lands celebrated Thanksgiving Day today in traditional fashion, cheered by talk of peace in Korea.

They went to church to pray and give thanks for the blessings the year has brought. And in their homes they sat down to dinner tables laden with turkey and trimmings.

New York Tragedy.

Tragedy marred the holiday, though, for many families in New York where scores were killed and injured in the disastrous crash of two Long Island railroad trains.

A welcome quiet settled over the battlefronts of Korea and touched off rumors of a settlement with the Chinese Reds. Twenty-seven American prisoners suddenly were released by the Communists in time to share in the bountiful feast served to American servicemen everywhere.

In Germany, U. S. soldiers in many cities invited German orphans and refugee children to take part in the repast.

President Truman asked his countrymen to pray for peace wherever they are, in church or at home or in the "busy walks of life, every day, everywhere."

Many of them had crowded Wednesday night onto trains, busses and planes to get back to their own hearths for the prayers and the feasting. And many more today jammed the highways heading to football fields and golf courses.

The weatherman studied his charts and said it would be cold in a lot of places and generally fair.

Cold or not, American tables were sure to be loaded with the good things of the soil, candied yams, and crisp, white celery and plump olives and chilled apple cider. But the smooth, gold-brown, roasted turkey, a bit cheaper than last year, was the feature attraction.

President Truman planned to share a 35-pound Pennsylvania-grown bird with Mrs. Truman, daughter Margaret and mother-in-law Mrs. David Wallace.

In case you've forgotten, the very first Thangsgiving we ever had was back in 1621. The Pilgrims had brought in their first new-world harvest.

GI's Well-Treated By Chinese Red Captors In Korea—

Released Americans Supply Details Of Strange Episode

By BARBARA BRINES
and DON WHITEHEAD.

AN AMERICAN HOSPITAL, Korea, Nov. 22.—(Delayed)—The Chinese Reds have given freedom to 27 American prisoners in one of the strangest stories of the Korean war.

The select group—most of them from the U. S. Eighth Cavalry regiment—was released into American lines Tuesday night.

Propaganda Indicated.

The GI's said they believed they were freed by the Communists in a propaganda move. The Reds themselves indicated that was the purpose of permitting the Americans to walk through moonlight into the safety of the U. S. lines.

The Chinese told the Americans to return to their lines and tell their buddies the Chinese Reds did not want war—and that the Korean war was the fault of "American imperialists."

The Communists called President Truman, General MacArthur and Secretary of State Acheson "no good capitalists."

One infantryman grinned and said, "I had to agree with them as long as I was a prisoner—but that was only because I wanted to get home."

Brought to Hospital.

The 27 were brought by air evacuation planes to the 8055th mobile army surgical hospital in Pyongyang for treatment. Some were wounded, but none was in serious condition.

They climbed from the plane, tired and hungry, bearded and unwashed—but safe again.

They said they were treated well by the Reds.

Selections Puzzling.

None said he knew of any atrocities by the Chinese. All said they were given the same rations as Chinese troops. The Chinese gave medical aid to the wounded with what limited facilities they had.

These reports of good treatment were in sharp contrast to the brutality suffered by Americans at the hands of the North Korean Reds.

None of the GIs knew why he was chosen to be freed rather than other Americans held in villages near the Manchurian border.

A sergeant said the Chinese did not look in the pockets of the Americans, and left them their cigarettes, watches and other personal belongings after they were captured.

The men were marched northward to a village near the Manchurian border. They were given daily lectures on Red ideals and the ills of capitalism.

A corporal said the questions asked by the Reds were more political than military.

"They wanted to know," he said, "what we were fighting for, if we were afraid to die, and why we were in the army."

Three days ago (Sunday) the Reds selected 27 men, separated them from the other prisoners and took them to a house where

Telephones Ring Again and Again - - Shrill Death Knells

Families Of 2,200 Wait - - All Unaware Of Tragic Event

By JACK RYAN
and LOU DOLPHIN.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—(AP)—The telephone rang in a small suburban home in Garden City. A 17-year-old boy picked up the receiver.

"Oh," he said, not wanting to believe. Then, slowly, "Father always took the 6:09."

The telephone rang again at Floral Park. A father answered.

"Is it certain? Are you sure he is really dead?"

"Yes."

'Our Last Boy.'

"Oh, God....why, that's our last boy....the other was in a B-17."

The telephone rang again—a shrill, impatient death knell, making the rounds of the pretty commuter communities that dot Long Island.

A woman answered at East Rockaway.

She screamed.

All night long the telephone rang, ringing in scores of homes that will not celebrate Thanksgiving today.

The calls brought the tragic news of a major disaster on the Long Island railroad—the worst train wreck in the history of the nation.

All Hurrying Home.

A warm and happy crowd has pushed and jostled its way through the loading gates at Manhattan's Pennsylvania station only a few minutes before. The day was over, tomorrow was Thanksgiving and the big city's commuters were hurrying home to wives and families.

About 1,200 of them boarded No. 780 of the bankrupt Long Island railroad. It was the 6:09, bound for pleasant Hempstead.

Another thousand crowded onto No. 174. It was the 6:13, headed down the same track for Babylon through Rockville Centre.

It was dark early, and a cold, chill moon, almost full, gleamed on the track ahead. Inside the cars, hot and stuffy, the extra crowds stood in the aisles, swaying as the 12-car trains plunged eastward.

Other Wreck Forgotten.

It had been nine months since the disastrous head-on collision at Rockville Centre killed 31. Probably nobody was thinking of that wreck when the 6:09 made an unscheduled stop.

This was at Kew Gardens, where the tracks run behind little bungalows in residential Queensborough, still inside the city.

The motorman threw on the power to start.

But the brakes had locked and nothing happened.

Then with a flash and a roar the 6:15 was on top of them from behind.

"I heard her coming," Brakeman Bartrand Biggam said hours later at Jamaica Hospital, "but I

RURAL CHURCH PROBLEMS ARE PRESENTED TO WOMEN OF PRESBYTERIAN COUNCIL

In a salled business session, following an all-day study and program meeting climaxing a month devoted to home and national missions, the Woman's Council of Westminster Presbyterian church Monday elected Mrs. T. R. Red as president to succeed Mrs. H. O. Blanding, resigned.

The chapel program meeting, which opened at 10 o'clock in the morning to continue through the early afternoon, was called to order by Mrs. Blanding. "Onward Christian Soldiers," sung by the assembly with Mrs. W. P. McCammon at the organ, was followed by prayer led by Mrs. P. H. Loggins.

Mrs. H. A. Juengerman, chairman of home and national missions, reviewed the progression of church events this month, climaxed by the special program, which will culminate in vesper services Sunday evening. A motion picture will be shown at that time. The customary supper hour will not be observed.

Waco Woman Speaker

Mrs. Juengerman presented Mrs. Matthew H. Arnold who introduced Mrs. John Olson of Waco, saying that the guest speaker for the morning session had been her room mate at the quadrennial women's meeting at Atlantic City. Mrs. Olson wore a corsage of gardenias, the gift of the council.

Mrs. Olson's review subject was the book, "Rural Prospects" by Mark Rich. The reviewer stated that she was qualified to bring such a subject, since both her parents were farm-born and her father taught agriculture in the University of Minnesota; her eldest daughter worked for several years in the Rural Church Work office in New York City, and her youngest daughter was the wife of a pastor serving four rural churches in a Larger Parish outside Memphis, Tenn.

Dr. Rich, lecturer and author of the book which is being studied by several church groups locally this year, is a native of Oregon and a graduate of Cornell University. He also served in the Gotham Larger Parish.

The reviewer pointed out that the book outlined the place of the church in rural life, its opportunities, agencies working for it, cooperative action and results.

Conditions Contrasted

In contrasting past and present rural conditions, Mrs. Olson pointed to such factors as utilities, roads, consolidated schools, machines and soil conservation, as responsible for vital changes. She defined a rural community as one with less than 2,500 population.

Until 1947, said the speaker, there had been a drift of population from the country to the city, but that this situation now is being reversed. She said that there were three rural conditions, Mrs. Olson pointing $2,000 and better annually in cash: those $600 to $2,000, and those below $600.

Of all congregations in the Presbyterian church, USA, said the speaker, two-thirds of the churches are rural and one-third the membership is rural.

She spoke of a community as being a group of people co-operating together with a sense of oneness but with great variety. The church's mission is to promote unity among the groups, she said.

Class consciousness makes for poor attendance in the rural church, the speaker declared, adding that often pastors wanted to move out of rural parishes because of poor pay.

Strong Points Cited

Strong points for the rural church, however, Mrs. Olson pointed out, are that it stands firmly against wrong, emphasizes a Day of Rest, has a strong sense of fellowship and points people to God. The church to be effective in a rural area must enter into the life of the people, the speaker stressed.

Calling attention to a recent trend to subsidize doctors in rural areas, she suggested that the plan might also be used with preachers. She said that it takes 1,000 people in a congregation to carry on efficiently the work of the church.

To combat the problem, according to Mrs. Olson, two systems are being explored: Consolidation of several rural churches into a larger parish with a council of representatives from each of the churches to plan identical programs and to adjust dates so that the preacher serves them equally; and federation of two or more congregations which nevertheless continue to supprt their separate projects while meeting together.

A vital rural church, said Mrs. Olson, must welcome newcomers, have strong lay leadership and promote planned work of the executive council.

Supporting Agencies

Agencies working for the rural church today, listed by the speaker, are the Grange, operating since 1867 in the interest of insurance and legislation; the Farmers' Union (1900) which supports the cooperatives; Farm Bureau of Unisity Extension Departments; the Department of Agriculture; Home Demonstration Clubs, Farm Credit Administration, Rural Electrification Administration, Future Farmers of America and 4-H.

Major church efforts now center on the Committee on Town and Country which Dr. Rich serves as secretary and the Christian Rural Fellowship Committee, both interdenominational organizationse and Christian Agricultural Missions, Inc., working with rural areas overseas. Surveys and short courses for farmers are provided by Cornell University.

In concluding the speaker reviewed the larger parishes of Texas, stating that it did seem that brighter days were ahead through the Larger Parish system.

A question and answer period was folowed by luncheon with Dr. Matthew H. Arnold giving the invocation. Bronze chrysanthemums in brass containers decorated the dining hall. During the mid-day period the offering for home and national missions was received.

Afternoon Review

To introduce the afternoon session in the sanctuary the assembly sang "Holy Spirit, Faithful Guide." Mrs. Juengerman then presented Mrs. Finis L. Seale in the afternoon review subject, "The Changing South," written by Dr. Ernest Trice Thompson, professor of church history at Union Theological Seminary at Richmond, Va.; editor of the Presbyterian Outlook, and author of a number of books.

Mrs. Seale said that the book was filled with historical subject matter and extremely factual in nature. The South she defined as the Southern states in which Presbyterian churches function, an area once known as the Bible Belt and the Solid South.

Though this area had a mixed population of negroes, Mexicans and Indians, it also had the largest native-born population, said the speaker. In this section the Presbyterian church was among the first to enter and had an initial advantage, lost principally because of the strict educational requirements for ministers and the consequent lack of enough ministers to serve this field. In addition to this fact, the educated type of minister did not appeal to the pioneer people.

She spoke of an agricultural South where King Cotton ruled, slave labor tilled the soil and large plantations were in existence. Changes following in the wake of the Civil War, when the land was divided into smaller areas and tenant farming began, included the improvement of the soil through lack of diversification, a migration to the city and neglect of large areas. She said that the rural Presbyterian church had not coped adequately with these changes and that over a period of time the center of activity in the rural community had shifted from the church to the consolidated school.

Good roads and cars carried the young people to entertainment offered in nearby towns, she said.

Complete Survey Needed

Mrs. Seale said that a complete survey should be made to determine existing conditions; an effort at evangelization must be exerted; the church must meet the needs of the community, and the church should cooperate with other denominations.

Shifting attention to the city scene, Mrs. Seale said that it took the North to recognize the potentialities of the industrial South. This caused a migration of workers, especially those of the aircraft, automobile and related industries, into the South.

An additional consideration, stated the speaker, was the fact that towns are spreading so fast that suburbs spring up overnight, and the Mother Church in the center of town must supply outposts in these suburban areas.

Mrs. Seale told her listeners that they should recognize the urgency of this situation and give added devotion to the cause. She quoted the Great Commission and listed as things that could be done: rededication for Bible study and prayer, more family altars and loyal stewardship.

Mrs. Seale concluded by stating that to cope with the conditions of the changing South, it is necessary that all be loyal to the cause.

Election Held

After the assembly sang "O Zion Haste," Mrs. Blanding extended her appreciation to the leader and speakers and others cooperating. She expresed the joy she had felt in serving as president of the council the past two years, adding that since she soon would be moving to Arizona her resignation must be tendered.

The chairman of the nominating committee, Mrs. John Sullivan, announced Mrs. Red as nominee to fill the unexpired term, and the latter was duly elected by the 50 attending council members.

A risng vote of thanks to Mrs. Banding was followed by a concluding prayer led by Mrs. B. A. Crofford.

Local Eleven To Oppose Valley Mills Friday

State Home's Laddies will represent District 22-B in the bi-district grid playoffs this week.

Declared co-champions with Blooming Grove in a district meeting at Blooming Grove Monday night ,the Laddies go up against the strong Valley Mills crew Friday night, Nov. 24, in Mexia.

Title Deadlock

The Laddies and the Lions ended up the regular season of play deadlocked for the top spot. Ordinarily, a playoff between them would have been the answer, but Interscholastic League rules prohibit certification of a district champion that has played more than 10 games in the regular season.

Blooming Grove played its 10th game against Frost Nov. 16. State Home played its 9th game against Kerens last week.

The meeting at Blooming Grove Monday night was called to designate a district champion and a representative in the state playoffs, which go only to regional in Class B.

District coachs and school officials attended.

Coaches Vote

The Laddies and Lions were designated co-champions of the district for 1950. A vote of the coaches on a district representative resulted in a 4-2 verdict for State Home. Coaches Goodman of State Home and Vinson of Blooming Grove did not vote.

Shortly after the meeting Monday, Coach Pete Goodman completed arrangements with Valley Mills, winner of 21-B. The game was set for Mexia, a neutral site, at 8 o'clock Nov. 24. The high school stadium there will be the site.

No arrangements for ticket sales in Corsicana had been made Tuesday. As far as is known, tickets will be available to Corsicana followers only in Mexia. They are $1.

State Home won the regional tottle in 1948, and a bi-district title in 1949.

According to neutral observers, Valley Mills will rate a three to four touchdown favorite over the Laddies Friday night.

In the last five years, Valley Mills has won two bi-district championships and one regional crown. This season thety are undefeated, and have rolled up 418 points to 32 for the opposition in ten straight games.

The winner of the State Home-Valley Mills game will meet the winner of the Elkhart-Malakoff game for the regional crown during the second week in December.

Soil Conservation District News

Marvin Wallace, whose farm is five miles northeast of Corsicana, near Hester, has increased his acre yield about threefold by applying a complete co-ordinated Soil Conservation program of terracing, contour cultivation, crop rotation and soil building crops of vetch. Wallace has poisoned for insects the past two years and he stated "it paid off in increased yields."

The following is a record of Wallace's 1950 cotton crop:

40.1 acres of cotton which yielded 32.64, 500 pound bales or 0.81, 500 pound bale per acre.

407 pounds lint cotton per acre.

$39.74 was average price per 100 pounds of lint.

$161.74 was value of lint per acre.

$7,382.54 was gross sales of lint and seed from the 40.1 acres.

$184.10 was gross sales per acre.

Wallace said "it cost $7.00 per acre to phosphate and plant vetch on the land and approximately $6.20 to poison insects." After this is subtracted it leaves a gross of $170.90 per acre.

When Wallace bought this poor, eroded farm in 1941, the average cotton yield per acre was 153 pounds. Following are the yields per acre for the past five years:

1946—256 pounds per acre.
1947—257 pounds per acre.
1948—256 pounds per acre.
1949—482 pounds per acre.
1950—407 pounds per acre.

R. H. Farrish, Cryer Creek Conservation Group, has planted approximately 75 acres of vetch. The seed was broadcast and disced in. Farrish planted the vetch to ad fertility and to stimulate growth of base grass when he sods or seeds this field in the next year or two.

G. A. Brown, northeast Cryer Creek Group, has planted 21 acres of winter peas for soil improvement. The peas were broadcast and the land bedded.

CORSICANA, TEX., NOV. 24, 1950

A LARGER VOTE

The vote turnout in the 1950 general elections was much smaller than that in the last presidential election, but substantially larger than the previous record for off-year elections, set in 1938. It might be premature to conclude that this indicates the beginning of a trend toward voting by a larger percenage of the eligible citizens. But at least an upward turn has been made.

There appear to be two reasons for the larger vote. In many places an intensive effort was made to increase the size of the vote by party or non-partisan groups, or both. Such an effort, when earnestly made, inevitably bears some fruit. In all parts of the nation there developed contests which aroused widespread interest, and which made so much commotion that they attracted the attention of many people who ordinarily take little or no voluntary interest in political matters.

Either means of stimulating a higher percentage of voting is essentially sound. People who go to the polls chiefly in response to urging are bound to take some interest in what goes on there; that's human nature. The next time they may take an interest beforehand, knowing that they will be urged to vote. The third time they may need no urging at all.

Interesting contests not only draw more citizens to the polls but also cause them to be more thoughtful about their ballots. And one leads to the other. If more people form the habit of voting and discussing political matters, more people will be attracted to political office and more interesting contests will result. This is the surest way to improve government.

HONORING THE GREAT

The Hall of Fame for Great Americans has had some important additions. Every five years a group of notable Americans chooses additional names for the Hall. The number is variable, but any candidate chosen must receive the votes of a majority of the electors. Usually about four or five are thus given place. In 1940 the electors were able to agree on but one, Stephen Foster, the author of America's most beloved songs.

This year the six names chosen are unusually prominent. Woodrow Wilson and Theodore Roosevelt enter together, an association which both would have loathed in their lifetimes. Scientific achievement is represented by Dr. William C. Gorgas' who made it possible to dig the Panama Canal by ridding the neighborhood of yellow fever, Josiah Willard Gibbs, one of the world's great mathematical physicists, and Alexander Graham Bell, inventor of the telephone. The first woman since 1920 was chosen in the person of Susan B. Anthony, the unwearied campaigner for woman suffrage and the removal of discrimination against women.

No choice may be made except of someone dead 25 years or more. Wilson thus got in at the earliest possible moment. Theodore Roosevelt was less quickly recognized, as he failed of election at his first opportunity in 1945. Except for Bell, who died in 1922, the others have been eligible for a good many years; but presumably the electors in previous years have found choice difficult when so many eligibles were presented for consideration. There has been a tendency to give undue preference to statesmen and writers. The 1950 choices offer a better balance.

THANKSGIVING.

The turkey on the table and the family gathered around.
Now silenced for a minute the laughter's merry sound.
Come, fold the hands together and bow our heads in prayer
And let us thank our Father for
His ever loving care.

The early Pilgrims did it,
Although hardship was their lot.
To thank God for ther blessings
they never once forgot.
Beset with ills and dangers and often sad of heart
This day for their thanksgiving
the Pilgrims set apart.

For all God has provided; for health that keeps us strong;
For home and hearthfire glowing;
for laughter and for song;
For faith that comforts sorrow;
for courage hurts to bear;
For love that here unites us we bow our heads in prayer.

For this our land of plenty we?
voice our thanks today.
For all that has enriched it with gratitude we pray.
Grant us that pilgrim courage
which dared to cross the sea
To hold the dream they cherished and ever keep it free.

LETTING IN LIGHT

An important governmental proposal was presented this fall to the voters of Cuyahoga county, Ohio, which includes the city of Cleveland and most of its suburbs. This was the submission of a charter providing for a unified county government. At present each county office, treasurer, auditor, sheriff, prosecutor and others, operates independently, without any basis for co-operation with the other offices. Also many functions of county-wide interest, such as water, sewers and puplic health, have no county directing agency at all, but are divided among the three-score separate communities, co-ordinated only by individual agreements. The charter proposed a county manager with a council of nine, all to be elected. These would take over a number of activities now scattered among the towns, and would appoint the county officers.

A close fight developed on the charter proposition. Openly at least this was not on the question of whether there should be a unified county government but on the wisdom of specific items of the charter.

Some counties have merged the county government with that of the largest city in the county, a similar measure. Among these are Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, St. Louis, Baton Rouge, New Orleans, Denver and San Francisco, besides some two dozen cities in Virginia. The merger is not complete in all these; there is still some duplication of offices, but a good beginning has been made.

The theory, a sound one, underlying these various projects is that the county is not a natural growth, but utterly artificial. In addition it has become the operating ground for political machines. The county was called years ago "the Dark Continent of American government." Those which seek reforms are trying to let in a little light.

CHOOSING BY LOT

In the palmy days of ancient Athens, the Council of five hundred which governed the city was not elected but was chosen by lot. Cynics will say that they probably got as good results as we do by balloting between opposing candidates.

It has to be noted that such a method would be practical only in a homogeneous community, not too large, where all of the citizens were on much the same level of ability and intelligence. The New England town meeting perhaps could have employed selections of officials by lot with acceptable result if they had seen fit. In a large city, however, the results of the lot system would be apt to be grotesque.

MAPPING THE STARS

A project of great value to anstronomers and to future interplanetary travelers has been completed. The Yale University Observatory has finished mapping half the sky, listing and locating 128,000 stars. This should prove useful to pilots in the stratosphere and beyond, who will now know what to avoid.

As yet the new atlas throws no light on the great question that now perplexes astronomers. Is the universe limited? And if it is, what if anything can lie beyond it?

STEWARDSHIP A PRINCIPLE FULL OF THE PROMISE OF JOY

All We Have is Given Us As Trustees—We are to Administer to God's Glory and Man's Benefit—Security and Lasting Satisfaction Follow Practice of Stewardship

By EARL L. DOUGLASS.

It is generally possible to tell the quality and sincerity of a man's religious faith by the extent to which he is willing to give of himself, his time and his money to the enterprises of the church.

Strangely enough, Jesus mentioned money more often in his public utterances than any other single thing. He spoke about it even more often than he did about prayer. He was deeply impressed—and He tried to impress His hearers—with the effect money produces on character. He taught that money is a servant, and when so accepted and used it becomes one of life's most important factors. But money as a master is something quite different, and Jesus seemed to feel that He could not sufficiently warn men against its devastating spiritual effects if they allowed money to gain ascendency over their better impulses.

Master or Servant?

Our Lord's teaching was that it is good to have money; but for money to have you—that is the antithesis of heaven. Money-mastered men are the most miserable of mortals—greedy fears haunting them; their souls in a process of steady atrophy; their warm, elemental human instincts dying a slow death; so that they are poor fathers, poor neighbors, poor citizens. Scripture declares not that money is evil, but that "the love of money is the root of all evil." An Old Testament writer enunciated the principle, "The liberal soul shall be made fat;" and the natural corallary of that principle is that the selfish soul shall be made thin.

The two passages which make up the lesson this week are taken from the writings of Paul, but they perfectly reflect everything Jesus taught about money and its proper uses. "He that soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he that soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully." This is the Biblical setting forth of the principle that in this life we get what we give. Giving not getting, measures our wealth. There is a sense in which we annex new riches every time we share anything. There are very humble people who can speak possessively of "my missionary," "my orphan," "my student;" for they are permanent stockholders in their investment of bounty. Money given thus yields a return in broadened interest and in spiritual wealth.

Qualities of Stewardship.

Christian giving is voluntary—each is to do "according as he hath purposed in his heart." It is a procedure of good cheer, "for God loveth a cheerful giver." Furthermore—and many people do not appreciate this—true generosity of heart does more to insure us in material security than anything we can do for ourselves. God takes care of those whose first thought is of others—whose first impulse is to give rather than to get. He sees to it that these have "always all sufficiency in everyhing."

In the second passage of Scripture, we observe Paul writing an earnest "thank you letter" to the Philippians for a gift they had sent him during his imprisonment in Rome. But, said Paul, the nice thing about the gift is that I did not have to have it, "for I have learned in whasoever state I am, therein be content."

Paul had so lived his life that he had plenty of inner resources upon which he could draw in time of strain and crisis. He had learned how to be abased and how to abound. His own words were: "I have learned the secret both to be filled and to be hungry, both to abound and to be in want."

An Open Secret.

But the secret was really no secret. Paul had a source of power. "I can do all things," he declared, "through Christ which strengtheneth me." When anyone has that secret, he has with it the power to remove mountains, and best of all the power to win a complete and permanent victory over the circumstances of life.

Cutting straight athwart our ways of living is the Scriptural principle that we are not possessors of the things of life, but only stewards. All that we have and are is meant by the Heavenly Father to be merely equipment for service. Money and every material advantage may be beautiful and useful factors in the hands of a sincere steward of God.

It is a fair deduction from assembled Scripture to say that God is more concerned with the giver than with the gift. He wants us to be stewards of money and of life, because He cares first of all for our souls. When a person holds his possessions only in the consciousness that he is a trustee then his relationship is right toward both his money and his God. A complete sense of sacredness is imparted to daily living when this basic truth of stewardship is accepted and practiced.

As we practice giving in our limited little spheres, we take on the glory and power of Him who is the Giver of All Things.

SEVEN SENTENCE SERMONS.

The first garden was made by God, the first city by Cain.—Cowley.

No satisfactory substitute has been found for the Golden Rule, either in the field of economics or in any other phase of existence.—Farrell.

Not what we give, but what we

Himself, the hungry neighbor,

A business that makes nothing but money is a poor kind of business.—Henry Ford.

Every man according as he purposeth in his heart, so let him give; not grudgingly, nor of necessity; for God loveth a cheerful giver."—II Corintihans 9-7.

No war is so brilliant as a war

Enough to know, that through

Paraguay, by foreigners the least visited of the South American Republics, was pictured at the noon meeting of the Pan-American Round Table Tuesday at Kinsloe House. Mrs. Abe Goldberg, director, presided.

The opening prayer was led by Mrs. Jack Sisco. Mrs. W. M. Forester presented the factual background of the Paraguayan nation, and Mrs. R. L. Thigpin reviewed current events of related interest. Mrs. Thigpin substituted on the program for Mrs. Lynne A. Wortham.

Appropriate piano selections were given by Mmes. Forester and H. E. Smalling.

Population Small

Paraguay, enclosed in the center of the South American continent, has the excellent soil, favorable climate and other advantages to support a population of perhaps 40 million people, Mrs. Forester told her audience, yet this country has the smallest population of all the South American Republics, about one million people, and has the smallest foreign trade.

Its tragic history, pointed out the speaker, goes far to explain Paraguay's lag in progress. When it threw off the rule of Spain in 1811, the country fell into the hands of a series of dictators who ruled it with a rod of iron until 1870.

This is the only South American nation except Bolivia that does not lie on the ocean, Mrs. Forester said, adding that its capital, Ascuncion, is 950 miles North of Buenos Aires. To reach it travelers from the latter city must take a train ride of more than two days or a steamer trip of four lays, unless they travel by airplane.

The speaker said the country is about the size of California; one third of it is in the tropics; the Paraguay River divides the country into two distinct regions; most of the people live in the eastern area, and that this land is for the most part rolling and hilly. In the low, partly swampy plain which slopes west toward the Paraguay River are most of the farms and cattle-grazing lands. The region that slopes east to the Parana is a subtropical wilderness, mostly forested, and its wild yerba trees for centuries have been the source of the national drink. The remaining three-fifths of the country west of the Paraguay is part of the vast expanse of grass and forest called the Chaco where some Indians and a handful of immigrant colonies live, but which is mosty uninhabited and unexplored.

Mixed-Blood Population

The people are chiefly of mixed blood, the descendants of Spanish setters and Indian tribes. There are only a few pure-blood Indians, and still fewer of pure Spanish blood, said Mrs. Forester. Guarani (Indian) is more widey spoken than Spanish, she added.

Paraguay encourages immigrants, but it is too remote to attract them in numbers, according to Mrs. Forester, who said that colonies of Mennonites from Canada and the United States have settled in the Chaco.

Schools are few in the rural areas with at least two-thirds of the people unable to read and write; health and sanitation have been improved within recent years but some diseases take many lives; most of the people live on small farms or large cattle ranches; the country is largely self-supporting, but manufacturing and mining are little developed, the speaker related.

Mrs. Forester sketched the country's story from the domination of the country by Jesuit missions (until 1769, when they were expelled), to the post-war period. "Reviewing the history of Paraguay, it is easy to realize how heart-felt were the words spoken by its foreign minister at the Montevideo Conference in 1933, when he said, "Peace is preferable to a place in history'," Mrs. Forestr said.

Kalmucks Welcomed

The current events feature told of Paraguay's welcome to some 700 Kalmucks, last known free and organized community among descendants of Genghis Kahn' Golden Horde, who as DP's are to be given 9,000 acres of fertile soil, cows, horses, chickens, farming tools and homes in the land-locked country which is now inviting development.

Today Paraguay is making a determined bid for the prosperity her natura resources could support, and immigants of almost every race and creed are welcomed t swell the population, according to Mrs. Thigpin's review.

'My Feet Hurt,' Says Corsicana Pilot After Saved By Helicopter In Korea

HEADQUARTERS, FIFTH AIR FORCE IN KOREA — "My feet hurt!" This was the first statement made by Capt. Robert M. Terry of Corsicana, Texas, after his plane had crashed deep behind enemy lines in North Korea, he had treked miles over rugged terrain with trapped South Korean troops and finally had been rescued by helicopter from under the nosos of the Reds.

It all began when Capt. Terry and 1st Lt. William J. Dodson of St. Albans, New York, were doing aerial reconnaissance work in their T-6 "Mosquito" spotter plane for a band of 3,000 South Korean troops. The Roks had plunged deep into enemy territory and had been cut off from their supply lines.

The "Mosquito" team spotted enemy positions and swooped down into a deep, narrow valley where the friendly troops were to drop the information about the enemy. When the T-6 attempted to climb out of the deep valley, the trouble for the "Mosquito" team started.

Peak Too High

Directly at the end of the valley a jagged peak loomed. With full power on the struggling plane Capt. Terry tried to clear the peak because it was impossible to make a turn in the narrow valley. The plane clawed for altitude but was unable to clear the peak and ploughed into it about 50 feet from the crest. Silence settled down over the tiny valley.

Later the same day back at an advanced airstrip 1st Lt. Edward J. Kelly of Chicago, Illinois, a helicopter pilot with the Third Air Rescue Squadron, was alerted for a rescue mission. He and Technical Sgt. Robert J. Burns, a para-medic from Fairfield, Calif., took off in their H-5 helicopter and flew to the crash scene. It was late afternoon and the weather was thick and foggy. At the crash scene the rescue team saw the plane but could see no sign of the downed airmen. With weather conditions growing worse the rescue team was forced to return to their base to await better search weather.

About noon the following day an F-51 pilot swooped low over a South Korean column of troops marching eastward through the valley. Tramping along with the Roks the fighter pilot noted two Americans in flying clothes waving frantically at him. The Americans were Capt. Terry and Lt. Dodson. The fighter pilot dropped them a note saying that a helicopter would be dispatched to pick them up.

Await Helicopter

Capt. Terry and Lt. Dodson picked out a convenient mountain top and settled back leisurely to await their rescue. Their leisure was short-lived. The Roks began engaging with Red troops and small arms fire began to splatter around the two Americans in their grandstand sents. The "Mosquito" pilots were forced to abandon their perch and move along with the Rok column for safety.

The column was almost clear of the valley when the rescue helicopter moved in and settled down alongside the column. Terry and Dodson were on the spot almost before the 'copter's wheels touched the ground. Sgt. Burns opened the door, hauled the two weary pilots aboard and Lt. Kelly lifted the helicopter out of the valley in a matter of seconds.

Para-medic Burns hurriedly asked if either of them were injured.

"No but my feet hurt," said Cap. Terry.

New Roads Are Planned In Pct. 3

Several road improvement projects are planned in Precinct 3 during the next couple of years, Fred M. Copeland, commissioner, revealed Thursday.

Funds from state and federal governments will be used.

Copeland said that an extension of the Streetman-Birdston road about three miles toward Winkler—reaching the sandy portion of the road, is one of the projects, while another will be the extension of the farm-market road from Pursley toward the Farm-Market road extending from Dawson, Shiloh, Eldorado and Union High into Limestone county. Several miles will be constructed, but the official does not think funds will be sufficient to reach the road.

This precinct recently completed one and one-half miles of rock roads from Eldorado east and west and a half mile from the Pursley lateral to the Old Pursley cemetery. These improvements were from the bond assumption funds received by Navarro county and divided among the precincts.

Result Of Friday Election Naming PMA Committeemen Is Announced

Results of the county-wide election of community agricultural committeemen on Nov. 17 were announced by PMA Admisistrator Bob Clique Wednesday.

County Grocers Launch Drive To Stop Hot Checks

Hot check artists won't find it easy to ply their trade under an "SOS" warning system now set up by the Navarro County Retail Grocers Association.

Meeting in the Corsicana Public Library building Tuesday night, the newly-formed organization completed plans for a county-wide cooperative campaign to protect merchants from bad check losses.

Mrs. J. S. Dill explained the plan, which calls for spreading of the "SOS" when a worthless check writer shows up. Within ten minutes, every member of the association will know of the alarm.

Association officers and directors also will keep in contact with city and county authorities.

Already boasting 62 members, the county grocers association is headed by Burney Bobkoff, president, who presided at the Tuesday meeting—the last until January.

Fullwood Boyd is vice president and J. S. Dill, secretary. Members were urged to call Dill when a hot check artist is known to be on the loose; then the "SOS" will be flashed through the grocers' network.

A group of Smith county grocers were special guests at the Navarro meeting. The value of organization was stressed. Speakers were G. H. Lassiter, Beauford M. Sanders, F. S. Barton and Sid Waghalter, all of Tyler.

"If we expect to hold our own, we've got to step up and keep pace," advised Lassiter, who began his career as a grocer in Corsicana 27 years ago. "If you're not changing with time, you're not progressing."

The guests were introduced by Ben Hawk, also of Tyler.

At the close of the meeting, a new Stetson hat was given to the lucky registrant—J. C. Payne.

Work Is Pushed On Construction Of New Hospital

Construction of the Navarro County Memorial Hospital is progressing rapidly as the contractors rush operations as fast as possible to take advantage of the favorable weather conditions.

The pouring of the concrete for the second floor is in progress this week and workmen are erecting the forms for the third floor. Some time is required to construct the forms for a floor in the huge structure—more time than to pour the concrete after all preparations are finished. Several days are required to lay the reinforcing steel in the standards and floor.

Contractors are rushing the outside work during the good weather and will transfer the main bulk of operations inside when the weather stops the concrete work.

The contracts for the building approximately $1,200,000 were awarded several months ago.

The nurses' home, a 28-room structure, has not been advertised for since the commissioners court and advisory board deemed it should be started later than the main building as it would require much less time to complete.

Gravel roads, which will be black-topped later, have been constructed into the hospital site from both West Second avenue and Highway 22, and are being packed by the traffic in and out of the grounds incident to the building program.

Frost Child Is 24th Polio Case

A 19-months old Frost child was reported Monday as Navarro county's 24th polio case in 1950. Dr. A. L. Grizzaffi, Frost, reported that Juanita Anderson was a patient in the Crippled Children's Hospital at Waco.

Baptists Refusal Of Federal Aid For Hospitals Commended By Judge

The Baptist denomination was complimented Tuesday night by A. P. Mays, district judge and prominent Episcopalian teacher and official, for its recent refusal to accept federal aid for its hospitals.

The compliment came as the jurist addressed the Corsicana Baptist District Association Brotherhood at its November meeting held at the North Side Baptist church.

Officers were elected for the ensuing year. Refreshments were served by the women of the church following the program. Jack Goff, moderator of the association and host pastor, welcomed the visitors. A total of 148 men attended.

Churches Represented

Churches represented were Barry, Blooming Grove, Calvary, Emmanuel, First, Roane, North Side, Memorial, Emhouse, Frost, Navarro Mills, Richland, Streetman and Mertens.

The December session will be held with the Frost church.

Rev. R. M. Bowen, assistant pastor at North Side, led the singsong and gave a special solo "Longin for Jesus," accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Jack Goff.

In his introduction of Judge Mays, the Rev. Mr. Goff termed his friend as one with a deep concern for the youth and the homes of the community.

In the beginning of his remarks, the district judge said that in his opinion a man making an honest pair of shoes was doing God's work as much as teaching in a Sunday school. He termed the Baptists as being practical Christians and then complimented the Baptist convention for its stand against any federal subsidization of its far-flung hospital properties and its needs for expansion.

"There is no such thing as something for nothing," Judge Mays asserted, and then mentioned the combined public debt of the states at 4 1-2 billion dollars as compared with 257 billions of dollars debt of the federal overnment.

"What right has any state to ask for a dole or handout?" Mays asked.

Big Public Debt

Further emphasizing the enormity of the public debt, Judge Mays said that there had been only a billion minutes since the birth of Jesus Christ while the U. S. government owes now 257 times as many dollars as there are minutes since the Savior was born.

The speaker posed this question: "If the people lose confidence in the government, then what?"

Turning to another phase of his address, the jurist outlined the trouble of the present time:

1. Too many people are socialistic and communistic in their thinking without being conscious of such a condition.

2. Too many interpret with emphasis on the giving of the Scripture—prayer—"Give us this day our daily bread" and far too many forget that other Scripture that man shall eat bread from the sweat of his face—and too often people forget the message in the 6th chapter of Proverbs when the lazy person is admonished to observe the ant for its industry and work.

Again speaking of the Baptist denomination as he sees it, Judge Mays declared:

Practical Christianity

"You are on the bedrock—applied practical Christianity—you preach it and practice it" and then as an example of his meaning, he complimented the host pastor for his untiring efforts of "more than any other individual to alleviate juvenile delinquency" in this community.

In giving his own beliefs, Judge Mays pointed out three pillars of his faith:

1. Belief in the divinity of Jesus Christ—if one doesn't believe that he throws down Christianity.

Ten Commandments

2. The Ten Commandments as given to Moses—laws that have stood for more than 3,000 years—to which there has not been added or subtracted portions governing human conduct—accepted by the Jew, Catholic and Protestant.

Judge Mays stressed the "Love thy neighbor as thyself" as being perhaps the greatest since no one can qualify in that commandment without loving God.

3. A firm belief in eternal life. He quoted the Scripture dealing with the love of God that caused him to send his only begotten Son, that whosoever believed on Him should not perish, but have everlasting life. In concluding his message, Judge Mays suggested that God could be seen in the changing seasons, sunshine, rain, flowers, trees—"Look about you and see Him," he declared.

T. S. Patrick, president of the Brotherhood, presided. He recently was re-elected at the association meeting.

Other officers re-elected Tuesday night are Revs. Jack Goff, Virgil Fielden, Emhouse, and W. O. Estes, Dawson, advisory council; Roy Bristow, Corsicana, program vice president; W. B. Denn, Frost, attendance vice president; W. J. Barnes, Navarro Mills, promotion vice president; Don Palmer, Frost, secretary-treasurer; Roy Holcomb, Corsicana, chorister; Paul Moore, Corsicana, reporter. President Patrick appointed one man from each church as attendance chairman.

Local Catholics Join In National Campaign To Aid Korea War Victims

Catholics in the Diocese of Dallas are joining the National Catholic Welfare Council in providing Korean victims of war with clothing.

Letters urging assistance for the war victims were read in all the parish and mission churches of the Dallas Diocese last Sunday.

The letter from the Diocesan director, as read at the Immaculate Conception church here Sunday by Very Rev. Msgr. Vitus Graffeo, pastor, follows:

"My dear Friend:

"A short time ago, our State Department at the request of the Unified Command of the United Nations Forces in Korea made an urgent appeal to the War Relief Service of the National Catholic Welfare Conucil for clothing for the victims of war in Korea. The State Department explained that a hard winter was in prospect and 2,000,000 Koreans are without clothing, bedding and shelter. The war has stripped them of these necessities and left them destitute.

"Fortunately, because of the work of many Catholic organizations, especially the National Council of Catholic Women, 150 tons of clothing were available for immediate delivery. This clothing was shipped by army transport and is now being distributed under church auspices to the needy in Korea. This first shipment will not, howeer, be near enough but it is a good start.

"In order to relieve many more victims of war and others, the expellees and refugees in Europe, the Bishops of America are asking the Catholic people to help. In most of the Dioceses of the United States, including our own, a clothing drive will be sponsored during Thanksgiving Week from Nov. 19 to 25. His Excellency, Bishop Lynch, asks you to co-operate with your pastor in this charitable work. Under your pastor's direction, clothing of all kind, shoes and bedding will be collected and sent to the War Relief Service—NCWC. They, in turn, will process them for overseas shipment and supervise the distribution. The poor will be helped regardless of race, nationality or religious belief.

"During this coming week every Catholic in the Diocese of Dallas is requested to go through their wardrobes, their trunks, and clothes closets and sort out clothing and shoes which are still serviceable but no longer especially needed. Clothes and shoes for children are to be given special attention because they will be most acceptable. Blankets and bedding are needed too.

"Although our nation is vexed with many problems, God has blessed us in many ways. Our people have a superabundance of food and all manner of goods and services. Our nation has been spared the scourge of war and the ravages of revolution within its boundaries. Let us be grateful during this Thanksgiving Week for our many blessings and generously give to help less fortunate brothers in Christ."

SCHOOL BOND ELECTION INDICATED FOR SPRING AFTER NEEDS EXPLAINED

A school bond election to finance much-needed improvements probably will be held early next spring, the Corsicana Board of Education indicated Monday night.

Further plans for the proposed referendum, and an outline of the needs, will be prepared at a special board meeting next Monday night, Nov. 27.

To Explain Needs

Although needs of the expanding school system are generally known board members decided at their meeting in Supt. W. H. Norwood's office to "lay it all on the table" after analyzing conditions in every school.

Topping the list of needs, apparently, will be a gymnasium at the high school. During a brief discussion of this proposed project—long wanted by Corsicanans—board members expressed hope it could be constructed adjacent to, and connection with the high school. A minimum seating capacity of 2,000 seems preferred.

Size of the proposed bond issue was not indicated, but the board must complete its survey and determine the amount of funds necessary to fulfill the needs before arriving at this figure.

Expansion Necessary

Needs which have been cited by Supt. Norwood in the past include the gymnasium, a junior hig cafeteria and addtional classrooms to handle a ever-increasing enrollment.

Playground space is one of the big needs, indicating that the school system must purchase additional acreage.

A new school—in the northwest section of Corsicana—may be constructed. That is only a possibility, though, it was noted. It has been mentioned frequently at board meetings and was brought up again Monday night.

When the board convenes next week, Norwood will submit "facts and figures" for the trustees' consideration.

Enlargement of schools was deemed necessary to relieve an alarming overcrowdedness in elementry classrooms. Practically every available space has been taken.

Norwood disclosed plans to secure another teacher at the Crockett school.

"They're running about 42 to the room over there," said Norwood. "We plan to make a classroom out of the food room and let the children eat their lunches on top of their desks."

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

City Engineer Ordered To Get 75 Right-Of-Way

Prospects for Highway 75's widening to 64 feet appeared much brighter Tuesday after the city commission authorized City Engineer Fred V. Blucher to proceed with steps to procure the needed right-of-way and to consult with the state highway commission in working out final details.

Other actions by the commission included approval of $150 a year clothing allowance for members of the fire department, to be paid in quarterly installments, and referral of a request from IOOF officers for more fire protection at the lodge's home on West Second avenue.

Property Owners Present.

Several Highway 75 property owners attended the session and Spokesman T. C. Orr said the property owners were ready to cooperate and to pay for the curb and gutter. He said he hoped the city commission could iron out problems holding up the job.

Others who spoke in connection with the road program were Miss Frankie Freedman and J. N. Edens.

T. F. Aston, Sherman, was spokesman for the Odd Fellows delegation and said to benefit from city fire insurance rates the home needed a standard three-way fire plug at the school's entrance and about 410 feet of six-inch line to connect with the school's four-inch system.

He pointed out that the lodge would deed its hydrants and water lines on the property to the city if this proposal is approved.

Mayor Hubert T. Braselton said the commission would take the matter under advisement and added:

"Unfortunately, the water bond issue defeated last week would have helped take care of such matters as this."

The proposal was referred to Commissioner Hayes Bonner and the city engineer to work out plans and costs, and to report back to the commisison.

Tom Ratliff appeared before the commission to inquire about blacktopping two blocks of Bragg avenue. He was informed if the property owners would gravel the streets the city would blacktop it in the spring.

Sewer Fee Charges.

City Attorney Julius Jacobs reported he had sent letters to 11 people who are five months behind in sewer fee charges and he said he informed them that their service would be disconnected if the bills weren't paid by Dec. 1. There are 23 on the line the city engineer said.

Mayor Braselton announced that persons on the North Beaton street sewer line wanted to meet with the commission, and he added that the meeting would be held in corporation court at 7:30 p. m. Monday.

Commissioner J. E. Davant introduced the motion for the firemen's clothing allowance and asked that it be retroactive to Nov. 1.

He remarked about the number of fires the members of the department are fighting and told how each fireman has to buy his own clothing and pay his own laundry and dry cleaning bills As he spoke the department answered its 10th alarm of the day.

Davant also asked that a petition for a street light on South Seventh street at East Sixteenh avenue be reconsidered and referred to teh street and light commissioners. This was approved.

New Fire Plug.

The commission ordered a new fire plug be installed in place of a worn out hydrant near the Baptist church on North Beaton street.

Commissioner Bonner Said he hoped the water department would be able to build up funds so needed improvements could be made.

He said: "We all know we need money now and then from the water department in order to run the city. However, the water system is the only real money-maker the city has.

"I want to go on record as favoring the building of a surplus in water funds so in the future we can make needed improvements and extensions."

The commission received a letter from the Travis school PTA thanking them for the signal light installed on West Thirteenth avenue in front of the William Travis school.

The commission ordered $4,000 transferred from the water fund to the general fund.

38,895 Bales Of Cotton Ginned In Navarro County

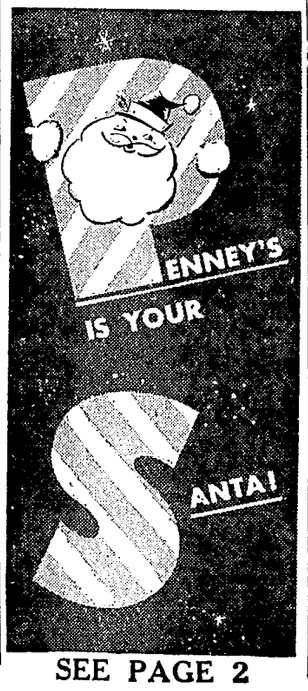

Cotton ginned in Navarro county prior to November 1, 1950 crop, was 38,895 bales as compared with 60,003 bales on the same date in 1949. These figures have been released by the Department of Commerce, Bureau of the Census, Washington, through the district supervisor in Fort Worth.

The production in most adjoining counties also is far below that of last year as follows with the 1950 production used in the first figures and the 1949 in the second totals:

Ellis—53,837—89,289.
Freestone—5,397—9,321.
Hill—45,384—59,536.
Limestone—24,735—22,328.

It will be noted that the 1950 production in Limestone is higher than last year, a condition that exists in only a few Texas counties.

No figures on cotton production in Henderson county were included in the release from Washington.

which has grown to be the best form of living in the world."

We should all be thankful for the great contributions of our country, all of which were made possible by the ideals set down by our forefathers, he asserted.

The speaker compared the United States with other nations and stated that this country surpasses all others in its achievements.

"We shouldn't let ourselves believe we have become great because of our resources," Dr. Sadler said.

"Other countries have plentiful resources, also. But we have the will of God.

"The will of God is the real way of life."

At the presnt time, the speaker pointed out, this country is fighting to preserve its democratic way of life.

Fighting for Freedom

"It's a battle of freedom against dictatorship. We should ever be mindful of the debt of gratitude owed those who are giving their lives to save our great country."

The fight we are in now, he added, is the same our forefathers faced when they came to this country.

"We are building a great nation," Dr. Sadler said, "and as we build a great nation we are building a great world."

He pointed out that there now is world community but no world spirit to hold it together.

"We have no world spirit nor world brotherhood. We must create a framework for community living in order to continue our present way of life.

"The world needs a cohesive force to hold it together. The church holds the greatest hope for civilization. The church can create a world spirit."

It's up to every individual, the speaker said, to demonstrate this democracy's way of life.

"If we present the true picture of our nation, no other form of government will have a chance to survive," he said.

"If we give ourselves to religion and recapture our forefathers' ideals democracy will survive. We should remember the thoughts of our forefathers. They were in search of God, not gold."

The benediction was ponounced by the Rev. S. R. Estes, pastor of the Cumberland Presbyterian church.

The former prisoners—bearded, unwashed and hungry—made their comment after they were flown to an Army hospital in the former Red capital of Pyongyang and the Army's secrecy lid partially lifted.

They knew nothing of peace talk.

In Washington, U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson told his Wednesday news conference that creation of a demilitarized buffer zone between North Korea and Red China's Manchuria has been discussed.

But he said no agreement has been reached. He added that discussions were with friendly foreign governments.

Immediately after the unexplained release of the 27 prisoners, a trustworthy source in Tokyo denied that any peace negotiations were going on anywhere. Later, Echols amended that to deny negotiations at "this level."

Speculation arose that the peace question might be taken up at Lake Success by a Chinese Communist delegation enroute to the U. N.

Colonel Echols also denied reports that efforts were being made to work out a mass surrender or withdrawal of Chinese forces, whose sudden appearance in Korea in late October prolonged the war.

Nevertheless the Chinese were withdrawing everywhere. Chinese Nationalists in Taipei said the Chinese Reds had been ordered to fall back because of heavy casualties, intensive bombings and superior U. N. fighting power.

Driven to Border

Actually, there was no more explanation of the withdrawal than of the unprecedented release of the 27 prisoners.

The American pows were driven in trucks 60 miles southward from a prison camp at Pyoktong on the Manchurian borderf. They were hidden by night to avoid UN war planes, and were released about a mile in front of the U. S. First Cavalry Division lines.

Twenty-three are veterans of the cavalry's Eighth Regiment. Four are from the 19th Regiment of the U. S. 24th Infantry Division. The regiments were cut off and savagely attacked in the surprise Red counter offensive in the Unsan area of northwest Korea Oct. 31 and Nov. 1.

The prisoners—all enlisted men—said they were well fed, well treated, and cared for by two captured American doctors. They were not questioned about U N military dispositions.

When released, their guards shook hands with the Americans and told them howto reacn their own lines. Those unable to walk were carried by their comrades to American lines.

Contrasting Treatment

U. S. Eighth Army headquarters was surprised and relieved at the unannounced release. Headquarters began to wonder at the meaning of the Chinese action. Both the treatment of the men and their release was in marked contrast to atrocities committed by North Korean Reds.

Freed Americans said that once a North Korean guard shot a straggling American cavalryman in the foot. The Chinese beat the North Korean "furiously."

Whatever the Chinese reason for releasing the Americans, it was a Thanksgiving Day gift for the freed men.

Most GIs in Korea ate turkey.

On the battlefronts only patrol action was reported. They moved on the heavily manned northwest front, around the Changjin reservoir which U. S. Marines are enveloping in the center of the peninsula, and near the Manchurian border town of Hyesanjin held by the U. S. 7th Division.

Reds Always Withdraw

Reds withdrew whenever UN patrols approached, although they often outnumbered the patrols. Usually they retreated without firing a shot.

South Koreans moving up the east coast ran into less opposition as they approached Chongjin, 55 miles from the Soviet border. Other South Koreans took Hapsu Wednesday and captured Sackang after a brief fight.

UN air raids were relatively light, concentrating on secondary rail lines in the northwest.

they were fed rice, barley, meat and vegetables. Then they were loaded into trucks for an all-night drive.

Drove at Night

The men were hidden in a village the next day to escape UN planes. They were loaded into trucks for a second all-night drive.

The next day they hid in a dugout until nightfall.

Again they were loaded into trucks and driven south. They dismounted and the Chinese Red guards told them they were returning to their own lines.

One GI said, "I honestly didn't believe them. I thought it was a trap."

Another soldier said, "we prayed to that man up above every night. And when we came out, we prayed for the boys left behind."

The Chinese guards—five of them—shook hands with the men and told them to march down the road. The Reds then left the Americans.

Two sergeants and a corporal decided they would go in front of the group as a sort of advanced guard.

"We figured we might be ambushed," the corporal said. "We did not know what might happen.

"The three of us decided we would take our chances ahead. We felt if we lost our lives it would not be in vain as the others would have a chance to get away."

CELEBRATION

day of November, 1864, as a day for giving thanks.

Typically American.

Other Presidents did likewise and Thanksgiving Day became as much a part of the American scene as Christmas or election day.

A minor row resulted a few years back when President Franklin D. Roosevelt decided the fourth, rather than the last, Thursday should get the nod as the nation's Thanksgiving Day. Congress agreed and passed a joint resolution changing the date. But some states still stick to the old way.

One of these is Texas and Governor Shivers doesn't mind having two Thanksgiving days down there. Texas, he says, have twice as much to be thankful for as other people.

The Rev. Obie Barton of Fellowship Baptist Church is in Quitman this week to conduct a revival.

Drivers' Course To Be Taught At Corsicana High

A driver's education course will be taught at the local high school next semester, according to an announcement made by Superintendent of Schools W. H. Norwood.

The course, which consists of classroom and driving lessons, will be a credited course. All automobile dealers in the city who wish to participate and furnish a car for driving instructions will be invited to join in the program.

Names of teh dealers will be placed in a hat and the first name drawn will furnish the far for the first year. Other cars then will be used on a rotating basis each year, Norwood said.

Odis Pederson will be the instructor.

Plans for the course were worked out Wednesday by Embry Ferguson and B. W. Woolley of the school board, Police Commissioner J. E. Davant, Principal R. A. Armistead, Jack Sisco and Travis Knight, automobile dealers, Norwood and Pederson.

The driving course is an outgrowth of a suggestion made by the Corsicana Rotary Club.

PROBLEMS OF TEENAGERS DISCUSSED BY MRS. BUIE AT SENIOR HIGH PTA MEET

In the school library the Senior High PTA met Tuesday afternoon to hear student program features, a talk on a current PTA topic by Mrs. J. C. Buie and a report on the recent state convention. Mrs. B. J. Acock presided.

Miss Diana DuBose sang "Day After Day" and "Bless This House," with Miss Peggy Carroll accompanying at the piano. They were presented by Mrs. J. C. Watson, program leader, who reminded the assembly that the girls were two of the winners in last year's Tiger Talent competition.

Mrs. J. H. Binford, delegate to the Texas Congress of PTA which met in Mineral Wells Nov. 8-10, told of principal speakers before that body and plans for the congress to convene in Dallas next fall.

Reports Presented.

Mrs. J. Etheridge King read minutes of a preceding meeting, and a treasury statement was given by Mrs. John J. Garner. Committee reports were given with Mrs. Fred DuBose announcing the availability of Mrs. Herbert Emery, Dallas reviewer, for a January date. The association postponed a decision on the review date, since it conflicted with other local events.

R. A. Armistead, principal of Senior High, told the group that Mmes. Acock and Scarborough were responsible for a United Nations flag used in a UN Day assembly. He also reported that the use of an opaque projector had been provided through the courtesy of Mr. and Mrs. Watson.

Supt. W. H. Norwood also spoke briefly to the body, commenting upon the fact that the public school system is concerned for children at the highest and lowest economic levels and all graduations between.

Mrs. Buie's topic was "Where Do Teenagers Get Their Standards, and How Important Are Teenage Opinions and Whims?"

She said that the standards of young people stem from their every contact at home, in the church, school and community. From the child's first environment in the family group he acquires standards from the relationships of the parents, from shared responsibilities and pleasures; from family counseling, and from adult experience.

The church plays an important role in establishing standards, the speaker pointed out. From the Lords' Prayer, the Ten Commandments and an understanding of their relation to living, reverence for God and His handiwork, a young person can build standards satisfactory to his relationship with man. From the church relationship, said the speaker, he can acquire a tolerance of the beliefs of others, and the conviction that there is a little bit of God in every creaure.

Adjustments Needed.

School should help every student to become a well-adjusted individual capable of taking his place in society and making a constructive contribution to it, Mrs. Buie pointed out, adding that the teenager is a growing individual, constantly changing physically and mentally. In this period choices are made, problems solved and habits formed. Because the student tends to emulate the teacher, it is well for her to be neatly groomed, possessed of pleasing voice, capable of seeing student point of view and characterized by a personality for good leadership and by a sense of humor, according to the former teacher.

To contribute to the standards of teenagers the community needs to furnish the means for constructive use of leisure time, providing worthwhile programs, library facilities, recreations and civic organizations, said Mrs. Buie, who also pointed to popular meeting places of youth as contributing factors to their standards

The speaker examined the elements that make for social popularity in both boys and girls.

In her closing remarks she said, "Man can never come to his ideal standard. It is the nature of the immortal spirit to raise that standard higher and higher, as it goes from strength to strength, still upward and onward."

The next meeting of the Senior High PTA will be February 20, when Silas Triplett, Church of Christ minister, will be the speaker. Misses Peggy Tucker and Norene Golden will give piano solos.
